Mothers Might Learn Antidotes.

A young mother, during the infancy of her first born, set herself the task of committing to memory antidotes for the commonest poisons known, especially those that it might be possible for children to come into contact with. In addition to this, she memorized methods of aiding drowning and injured persons. In fact, learned sort of a "first aid to the injured" set of rules. Would not this be an excellent plan for all mothers?—Good Housekeeping Magazine.

Big Salary Explained.

"And how is your excellent son, the divinity student? He graduated from the theological academy about a year ago, I believe?" "Yes, just a year ago. And he's doing so well! They pay him a wonderfully large salary and next year he's to get more." "Indeed! That's very unusual. Perhaps it is his excellent delivery that nets him the large emolument." "Yes, that's it. He's one of the pitchers in the big league."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

GOOD PROGRESS AT ST. JAMES

Sunday School Room Scene of Considerable Activity. First Coat of Plaster on. Heating Plant Working. Other Operations.

With the entire building heated, the interior of St. James Lutheran church presents a busy appearance these cold winter days and in all portions of the structure there is much activity which is hurrying along the building to completion.

The first coat of plaster has been put on the large Sunday School room which will be the first portion of the church ready for use. Two more coats will follow, the walls and ceilings to have a sand finish. The main auditorium will be given the same treatment. The Sunday School room will be ready for use by Easter, or before, according to present plans and it is not believed that another postponement of the opening date will be found necessary.

In the basement of the rear portion of the church concrete has been laid and on this a floor will be constructed. It was originally intended to have the floor of cement but the women of the church, who will use this room for suppers and similar events, preferred wood and their wishes are being followed.

Present plans provide for no floor whatever under the main auditorium but these may be changed. The heating plant has been installed and is working steadily and keeping the building comfortable despite the fact that no glass has yet been placed in the church proper. Various materials have been used to keep out the cold. The heat pipes have not yet been covered and considerable other work remains to be done before that portion of the work will be finished.

There promise to be no further delays in work at the building and a few months should see things at the structure presenting an appearance which will show just what the final result will be. Even now the sizes of the various rooms in the Sunday School are apparent and give evidence of ample seating capacity for the school.

GOOD ATTRACTION

Mr. Paul Gilmore, is the eminent star in "The Mummy and the Humming Bird," one of the best attractions booked for the Wizard Theatre Thursday, January 11. It is a society drama in four acts. The play tells a very good story of a young man who becomes deeply absorbed in his work and, while he loves his newly married bride, does not give her the devotion called for. She becomes acquainted with an Italian nobleman who takes a fancy to her and she appreciates his affection. He entreats her to run away with him and she partially consents, but finally regains her senses and refuses to go. Her husband, with the assistance of a poor organ grinder, who, it develops, has lost the love of his wife as a result of the interference of the count, gets revenge. Mr. Paul Gilmore, one of the most popular actors on the stage, will head the company which has been selected with great care and includes Miss Kathryn Hutchison. This is the play that made Mr. Paul Gilmore a star and it will live as long as he does.

INSTALLED OFFICERS

Washington Camp 414 P. O. S. of A. installed their newly elected officers on Thursday evening following the ceremony with an informal "spread." A large number of members were present and a few extemporaneous speeches were made. Daniel Stallsmith, elected vice president, was the only one of the newly elected officers absent and he was kept away by his injuries which now have him confined to the Harrisburg hospital.

FATHER SMYTH WILL COME HERE

Father McManus Leaves for Locust Gap and will be Succeeded by Father Smyth, of York. Given Farewell Gift.

Rev. Fr. F. J. McManus who has been assistant pastor of St. Francis Xavier church for several months left this morning at eleven o'clock for Locust Gap, Northumberland Co., where he will be located in the future. Rev. Fr. T. W. Hayes, whose resignation was noted in these columns a few days ago, leaves next week for Emporium where he will spend the winter.

The Rev. J. J. Smyth, for some time past assistant pastor at St. Patrick's Catholic church, York, has been notified by Bishop Shanhans of the diocese of Harrisburg, of his appointment as assistant pastor at St. Francis Xavier church, Gettysburg. The appointment becomes effective next Sunday.

At a farewell reception given in York Thursday evening by the choir of his church Rev. Fr. Smyth was presented with a traveling toilet set in a morocco case. Thomas J. Carroll, who made the presentation speech, expressed the regrets of the choir and congregation upon his leaving the parish, but congratulated him for his promotion and wished him success in his new field of labor. A response was made by the Rev. Fr. Smyth.

The Rev. George Rice, who has been located at Locust Gap, Northumberland county, has been chosen to succeed Father Smyth as assistant to the Very Rev. J. J. Hollern at St. Patrick's.

No announcement has yet been made of an appointment to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Rev. T. W. Hayes.

GHOST WILL NOT STAY DOWN

The ghost of Jack Kavanaugh, who was burned to death in his cabin near White Pine sanitarium, Mont Alto, as most people believe, will not stay down.

Stories that he had been killed and robbed and his hut afterward burned were aloft. Now comes a tale that Kavanaugh is not dead. A Mr. Stoner is alleged to have seen him Tuesday. Of course some provision had to be made for the dead body in the cabin and it was said, to accommodate this, that it was another fellow and not Kavanaugh who was burned.

Coroner J. P. Macley was notified and sought a conference with District Attorney Nicklas. The latter had not returned from Philadelphia, but the coroner conferred with ex-District Attorney Long and they decided that the story was not strong enough to warrant any investigation.

SCHOOL REPORTS

Following is the report of Quarry school, Highland township, Carrie Warthen, teacher, for month ending January 1. Number enrolled 28; average attendance 25; per cent. of attendance 92. Those who attended every day during the month were: Genevieve Spangler, Myrtle Scott, Mary Carbaugh, Grace Adams, Myrtle Carbaugh, Edna Adams, Merle Stultz, Clarence Brown, Earl Adams, Jesse Weikert, George Wilt, Howard Weikert, Walter Stultz, Charles Carbaugh, Rufus Weaver, Loward Knouse, Clinton Weaver and Roy Carbaugh each missed one day.

Report of West Point school, Menallen township for the fourth month ending January 2. Number enrolled 30; average attendance 26; per cent. of attendance 91. Those who attended every day during the month were: Rae Thomas, Marjorie Brough, Ellen Starner, Carrie Goehanna, Ora Thomas and Frank Starner. Those who missed one day were, Ruth Brough, Helen Taylor, Ruth Black, and Cletus Starner.

BIG KILL OF BUCK DEER

Pennsylvania's kill of buck deer in 1910 will probably be exceeded by the kill of the year just closed, when the reports are all in, according to estimates made by men who follow up the hunting records of the state. Dr. Joseph Kalbfus, secretary of the State Game Commission, says he will not make an estimate until all reports are in hand, but says the record is going to be a big one.

Last year it is estimated that about 850 deer were killed. Thus far more than five hundred deer have been reported, and Clinton Lycoming Cameron and other big hunting counties have not yet sent in final scores. One story is that more than 125 were shot in Clinton alone.

FOR RENT: suite of rooms, second floor over 52 York street. Inquire Spangler's Music House.

FOR RENT: good farm of about 100 acres at Virginia Mills, Adams county, known as the old Thomas Marshall farm. Apply with reference to S. A. Buhrman, Rouserville, Pa.

MORE LINCOLN WAY ACTIVITY

Congressman Lewis Says that Many Congressmen are in Favor of the Proposition and that he Thinks Plan a Good One.

A dispatch from Washington to the Baltimore Sun says:

"Representative Lewis has become a little weary with the pressure of architects and societies of architects who would erect a memorial of stone or a bronze horse to Abraham Lincoln.

"Of course, I have the greatest respect for the superior technical knowledge of the artists and architects," said Mr. Lewis today; "but, I am afraid, their viewpoint is a little narrow. They are talking shop. Such a great, plain man as Lincoln should not be commemorated by a pile of stone, a stack of granite, or a broad flat effect, as some enthusiasts propose. Above all other things Lincoln was a man of the people and stood for practical ideas and rugged truths. The proposed Lincoln highway would be a most fitting monument to him. Let such a highway be built from the capital of the nation, where he worked for the salvation of the republic, to Gettysburg, where the Civil War virtually ended, and where Lincoln delivered the greatest memorial address ever made in any land or language.

"I think that many Congressmen are for the highway, and I hope that many more will favor it. Enough money has already been wasted in rockpiles about Washington. What we want in a memorial to Lincoln is something which will be of practical use and an effective expression of the love and veneration of the American people for their greatest President."

A Reader Cures His Constipation—Try It Free

Simple way for any family to retain the good health of all its members

The editors of "Health Hints" and "Questions and Answers" have one question that is put to them more often than any other, and which strangely enough, they find the most difficult to answer. That is "How can I cure my constipation?"

Dr. Caldwell, an eminent specialist in diseases of the stomach, liver and bowels, has looked the whole field over, has practiced the specialty for forty years and is convinced that the ingredients contained in what is called Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the best claim to attention from constipated people.

Its success in the cure of stubborn constipation has done much to displace the use of salts, waters, strong cathartics and such things. Syrup Pepsin, by training the stomach and bowel muscles to again do their work naturally, and with its tonic ingredients strengthening the nerves, brings about a lasting cure. Among its strongest supporters are Mr. John Graveline of 98 Milwaukee Ave., Detroit, Mich., and Mr. J. A. Vernon of Oklahoma City. Thousands of others of both sexes have written to Dr. Caldwell telling of gratifying results. It can be obtained at any druggist at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, or if you want to try it first a free sample bottle can be obtained by writing the doctor.

For the free sample address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 541 Caldwell building, Monticello, Ill.

Kansas Jurist Mentioned For U. S. Supreme Court.

TAFT LIKELY TO NAME JUDGE HOOK

Sounding Senators as to Objections to Him.

Washington, Jan. 5.—A visit by five members of the senate judiciary committee to the White House gave rise to the belief that President Taft had begun his usual sounding of that committee before sending in the nomination of a successor to Justice Harlan.

As matters stood, Judge Hook, of Kansas, seemed to be foremost in the president's mind.

It was understood that he sought to discover if there was any objection to Judge Hook in the judiciary committee.

None of the five senators admitted that he had any objection, but before any nomination is sent in the president will call in other members of the committee.

Chief Justice Orrin Carter, of the Illinois supreme court, was urged upon the president by Chicago lawyers for the vacancy.

HEIRESS IN POVERTY

Woman, Heir to $10,000,000, Is in Actual Want.

New York, Jan. 5.—Mrs. Julia Curtiss Lawrence complained to the supreme court that although she was heir to more than $10,000,000 from the estate of her aunt, the late Mary G. Pinckney, she was in actual poverty at the present time.

Mrs. Lawrence asked the court to have the estate partitioned so that she may be able to support herself. Her desire to have this done was particularly prompted by the fact that there is more than $2,000,000 due her immediately, she said, as the result of a recent sale of a portion of the Pinckney estate, the total value of which is estimated at between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000.

The suit was brought for Mrs. Lawrence by Elmore S. Banks, who was appointed by the probate court of Fairfield, Conn., as committee of the property of Mrs. Lawrence—at that time Julia A. Curtiss—the court declaring that she was incompetent to manage her affairs.

FOUR BOYS DROWN

Coasting Sled Breaks Through Ice and Boys Perish.

Winchendon, Mass., Jan. 5.—Four boys were drowned by a double runner coasting sled breaking through the ice on the Contoocook river at East Jaffrey, ten miles north of Winchendon.

The drowned are: Alpha Paradise, aged fourteen; Emory Salles, fifteen years old; Alfred Robichaud, aged ten, and Leon Chouinard, seven years old. Thomas Lafontaine and Raymond Boudvais were rescued with difficulty.

SEES WAR CLOUD IN PEACE TREATY

Senator Hitchcock Calls Taft Pact a Blunder.

SEES ALLIANCE W. TH ENGLAND

Declares It a Trap and Takes a Fling at Proposed Entanglement With Great Britain.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Flatly charging that the administration was blundering into an "entangling alliance" with Great Britain, Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, in the senate denounced the proposed arbitration treaty with that country.

He declared that the plan to permit the president to appoint commissioners to a high court of arbitration, without the consent of the senate, was revolutionary and dangerous. The proposed treaty, he said, would wipe out this nation's time-honored treaty-making plan and result virtually in the adoption of the system practiced by the monarchical powers.

"The president could authorize three commissioners to negotiate and submit differences to arbitration without consulting constitutional representatives of the people of the United States," he insisted. "That is the legitimate and honest interpretation of this treaty. That is what the joint high commission is for."

Sees Trap in Treaty.

"It is the trap in this treaty: it is a device to permit an 'entangling alliance,' by empowering our executive to treat without restraint from the senate, with the government of Great Britain, and, in my opinion, Mr. President, it must lead to, and it was designed to lead to, an engagement of the United States in the foreign policy of Great Britain."

Senator Hitchcock read an extract from a speech by Sir Edward Grey, British secretary of state for foreign affairs, in the house of commons on March 13 last, when he said:

"But supposing it took place, and two of the greatest nations in the world were to make it clear to the whole world that by agreement such as that, that in no circumstances were they going to war again, I venture to say that the effect on the world at large of the example would be one which would be bound to have beneficial consequences."

"It is true that the two nations who did that might still be exposed to an attack from a third nation who had not entered into such agreement. I think it would probably lead to their following it up by an agreement that they would join with each other in any case in which one only had a quarrel with a third party by which arbitration was refused."

Points to Anglo-German Clash.

"Mr. President, that is very significant language," Senator Hitchcock resumed, holding the document aloft. "It throws a flood of light upon this proposed transaction between the United States and Great Britain."

"At the time those words of Sir Edward Grey were uttered the relations between Great Britain and Germany were strained, and they are strained even today, as all the world knows, and the talk of possible war between Great Britain and Germany is almost constant menace in both those countries."

"When, therefore, Sir Edward Grey referred to the possibility of a quarrel with a third power which refused arbitration it is hard to escape the conclusion that he referred to Germany, and it is easy to see why under such a condition he would desire to follow up the pending treaty by an agreement with the United States to join Great Britain in her quarrel, if Germany refused arbitration."

The senator said he believed the United States to be in more danger from the diplomats of Great Britain than from the dreadnoughts of her navy.

TRAIN KILLS WOMAN

Baby Tossed From Mother's Arms as Locomotive Crushed Her to Death.

Philadelphia, Jan. 5.—Walking along the tracks of the Philadelphia & Reading railroad at Bustleton, near here, with her eighteen-month-old child in her arms, Mrs. Jolto Pifolia, thirty years old, was struck by a train and killed almost instantly.

The child was torn from her arms and tossed into a field, but except for a few slight bruises was uninjured.

Gettysburg Hero Dies.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 5.—Colonel John H. Calof, U. S. A., retired, who fired the first shot in the battle of Gettysburg, died in St. Louis of pneumonia. He was seventy-one years old. At the battle of Gettysburg he was in command of the Second U. S. artillery, and the gun from which he fired the first shot is standing on the battlefield. He will be buried at West Point.

New Head For Denver Road.

New York, Jan. 5.—B. F. Bush, the president of the Missouri Pacific railway, was elected president of the Denver & Rio Grande railroad and a member of the latter company's directorate. George J. Gould resigned as the chairman of the board and E. T. Jeffrey, former president of the company, was elected to succeed him.

W. H. DINKLE.

GRADUATE OF OPTICS

will be at Penrose Myers' Jewelry Store, every Tuesday. Free examination of the eyes.

SWALLOWED HIS TEETH

Man Operated on For Appendicitis Sues Doctor For Not Removing Them. Baltimore, Md., Jan. 5.—A set of false teeth is responsible for a suit filed by Clarence R. Bethel against the Union Protestant Infirmary and Dr. William A. Fisher.

Bethel owns the teeth. He wants $25,000 for the damage caused by his own teeth.

Some time ago Bethel's veriform appendix began to bother him. He went to the Union Protestant Infirmary, and Dr. Fisher was employed to operate. Bethel alleges that Dr. Fisher negligently forgot to remove the teeth. During the cutting process the teeth slipped into Bethel's throat, and all kinds of complications ensued, he asserts.

Bethel is a glassblower, and a glassblower can't do much blowing with a set of teeth in his throat. Moreover, Bethel alleges that it caused him a lot of pain and money to get the teeth out again.

RECOGNITION OF CHINA EXPECTED

Sulzer Resolution Likely to be Adopted.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The United States is likely to take the initiative in recognizing the republic of China. At least there will be strong pressure on the administration to do so. The introduction of the Sulzer resolution of recognition is viewed here as highly significant.

The resolution is a concurrent one. Its passage would not commit the administration to the recognition of the Chinese republic. At the same time its introduction and passage or the development of the fact that it had strong support in congress would have its moral effect both in China and on the powers.

This country is in a sense the guardian of China—that is, it has persistently sought to prevent partition and protect China against the greed of other powers. All the information here tends to show that the republic will win. Japan and Russia do not want the republic established. The information is that England will not stand in the way of a republic, though it will doubtless be lukewarm.

Under the circumstances it is pointed out among members of congress who are keeping in close touch with the situation, the United States ought to give recognition early, and it probably will. The Sulzer resolution will have strong support in both houses.

SAYS HE WAS FORCED TOWED

Declares He Was Forcibly Held While Rabbi Performed Ceremony.

Atlantic City, N. J., Jan. 5.—That he was forced under a canopy and held there by relatives and friends of Miss Tillie Segal, of South Bellevue avenue, until Rabbi Garfinkel performed the ceremony, was the defense of Daniel Rosenthal, of Philadelphia, when the young man faced the charge of bigamy at a hearing before Magistrate Jagmetty.

To avert any serious discomfiture of the bride, because of lack of dowry, it is alleged the gallant friends of the young woman used force in placing the bridegroom beside his betrothed. In this position the ceremony was performed, according to friends of the young man.

Rosenthal was angered and disappeared one hour after the ceremony. It was asserted during the hearing that Rosenthal had been separated but not divorced from his first wife.

Law Bars Women Deputies.

New York, Jan. 5.—New York county will have no women deputy sheriffs. It is against the law. Sheriff Harburger's feelings in the question to the contrary, notwithstanding his recent appointments of Mrs. Charles H. Truax, Miss Cornelia Sinnerton and Mrs. John S. Crosby will be recalled. They are not voters, and as the law prescribes that every deputy sheriff must not only be a resident of the county, but entitled to vote therein, women cannot serve.

Mrs. W. R. Day Near Death.

Canton, O., Jan. 5.—It is announced that Mrs. Day, wife of W. R. Day, associate justice of the United States supreme court, who has been seriously ill several months, has taken a turn for the worse. Friends fear that death may occur at any moment.

THE GIRL from HIS TOWN

By MARIE VAN VORST

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Dan Blair, the 22-year-old son of the fifty-million-dollar copper king of Blairtown, Mont., is a guest at the English home of Lady Galorey. Dan's father had been courteous to Lord Galorey during his visit to the United States and the courtesy is now being returned to the young man. The youth has an ideal girl in his mind whom he some day hopes to find.

CHAPTER II.

The Duchess Approves.

His attentions to the Duchess of Breakwater had not been so conspicuous or so absorbing as to prevent the eager mothers—who, true to her word, Lady Galorey had invited down—from laying siege to Dan Blair. Lady Galorey asked him:

"Don't you want to marry any one of these beauties, Dan?" And Blair, with his beautiful smile and what Lily called his inspired candor, answered: "Not on your life, Lady Galorey!"

And she agreed: "I think myself you are too young."

"No," Dan refused, "you are wrong there. I shall marry as fast as I can." His hostess was surprised.

"Why, I thought you wanted your fling first."

And Dan, from his chair, in which, with a book, he had been sitting when Lady Galorey found him, answered cheerfully:

"Oh, I don't like being alone. I want to go about with some one. I should like a fling all right, but I want to fling with somebody as I go."

The lady of the house was not a philosopher nor an analyst. She had certain affairs of her own and was engaged in them and lived in them. As far as Lady Galorey was concerned the rest of the world might go and hang itself as long as it didn't do it at her gate-post. But Blair couldn't leave any one indifferent to him very long, not unless one could be indifferent to a blaze of sunlight; one must either draw the blinds down or bask in its brightness.

She laughed. "You're perfectly delicious! You mean to say you want to be married at once and let your wife fling around with you?"

"Just that."

"How sweet of you, Dan! And you won't marry one of these girls here?"

"Don't fill the bill, Lady Galorey."

"Oh, you have a sweetheart at home, then?"

"All off!" he assured her blithely, and rose, tall and straight and slender.

The Duchess of Breakwater had come in, indeed she never failed to when there was any question of finding Blair.

Dan stood straight before the two women of an old race, and the American didn't suggest any line of noble ancestors whatsoever. His features were rather conglomerate; his muscles were possibly not the perfect elastic specimens that were those muscles whose strain and sinew had been made from the same stock for generations.

He was, nevertheless, very good to look on. Any woman would have thought so, and he bent his blond head as he looked at the Duchess as Breakwater with something like benevolence, something of his father's kindness in his clear blue eyes.

Neither of the noble ladies vaguely understood him. His hostess thought him "a good sort," not half bad, a splendid catch, and the other woman, only a few years his senior, was in love with him. The duchess had married at twenty, found her bargain at twenty-five. She held a telegram in her hand.

"We've got the box for Mandalay tonight at the Galety, and let's motor in."

Only Lady Galorey hesitated, disappointed.

"Too bad—I had specially arranged for Lady Grandcourt to drive over with Ellen. I thought it would be a ripping chance for her to see Dan."

When at length the duchess had succeeded in getting Dan to herself to ward the end of the day in the red room, after tea, she said:

"So you won't marry a London beauty?"

And rather coldly Dan had answered:

"Why, you talk, all of you, as if I had only to ask any girl of them, and she would jump down my throat."

"Don't try it," the duchess answered, "unless you want to have your mouth full!"

Dan did not reply for a second, but he looked at her more seriously, conscious of her grace and her good looks. She was certainly better to look at than the simple girls with their big hands, small wits, long faces and, as the boy expressed it, "utter lack of get-up." The duchess shone out to advantage.

"Why don't you talk to me?" she asked softly. "You know you would rather talk to me than the others."

"Yes," he said frankly; "they make me nervous."

"And I don't?"

"No," he said. "I learn a lot every time we are together."

"Learn?" she repeated, not particularly flattered by this. "What sort of things?"

"Oh, about the whole business," he returned vaguely. "You know what I mean."

"Then," she said with a slight laugh, "you mean to say you talk to me for educational purposes? What a beastly bore!"

Dan did not contradict her. She was by no means Eve to him, nor was he the raw recruit his simplicity might give one to think. He had had his temptations and his way out of them was an easy one; for he was very slow to stir, and back of all was his ideal. The reality and power of this ideal Dan knew best at moments like these. But the Duchess of Breakwater was the most lovely woman—the most dangerous woman that had come his way. He liked her—Dan was well on the way to love.

The two were alone in the big dark room. At their side the small table, from which they had taken their tea together, stood with its empty cups and its silver. Without, the day was cold and windy, and the sunset threw along the panes a red reflection. The light fell on the Duchess of Breakwater, something like a veil—a crimson veil slipped over her face and breast. She leaned toward Dan, and between them there was no more barrier than the western light. He felt his pulses beat and a tide rising within him. She was a delicious emanation, fragrant and near, and as he might have gathered a cluster of flowers, so in the next second he would have taken her in his arms, but from the other room just then Lady Galorey, at the piano, played a snatch from Mandalay, striking at once into the tune. The sound came suddenly, told them quickly some one was near, and the Duchess of Breakwater involuntarily moved back, and so knocked the small tray, jostled it, and it fell clattering to the floor.

CHAPTER III.

The Blairtown Soloist.

Blairtown had a population of some eight thousand. There was a Presbyterian church to which Dan and his father went regularly, sitting in the bare pew when the winter's storms beat and rattled on the panes, or in the summer sunshine, when the smell of the pews and the panama fans and the hymn books came strong to them through the heat.

One day there was a missionary sermon, and for the first time in its history, a girl sang a solo in the First Presbyterian church. Dan Blair heard it, looked up, and it made a mark in his life. A girl in a white dress trimmed with blue gentians, white cotton gloves, and golden hair, was the soloist. He knew her, that is, he had a nodding acquaintance with her. It was the girl at the drug store who sold soda water, and he had asked her some hundreds of times for a "vanilla or a chocolate," but it wasn't this vulgar memory that made the little boy listen. It was the girl's voice. Standing back of the yellow-painted rail, above the minister's pulpit, above the floor, the red pews and the panama fans, she sang, and she sang into Dan Blair's soul. To speak more truly, she made him a soul in that moment. She awakened the boy; his collar felt tight, his cheeks grew hot. He felt his new boots, too hard and heavy. She made him want to cry. These were the physical sensations—the material part of the awakening. The rest went on deeply inside of Dan. She broke his heart; then she healed it. She made him want to cry like a girl; then she wiped his tears.

The little boy settled back and grew more comfortable and listened, and what she sang was:

"From Greenland's icy mountains,
From India's coral strands—
Before the hymn reached its end he was a calm boy again, and the hymn took up its pictures and became like an illustrated book of travels, and he wanted to see those pea-green peaks of Greenland, to float upon the icebergs to them, and see the dawn break on the polar seas as the explorers do. . . . He should find the north pole some day! Then he wanted to go to an African jungle, where the tiger, "tiger shining bright," should flash his stripes before his eyes! Dan would gather wreaths of coral from the str—ands and give them to the girl with the yellow hair. When he and his father came out together from the church, Dan chose the street that passed the soda fountain drug store and peeped in. It was dark and cool, and behind the counter the drug clerk mixed the summer drinks; and the drug clerk mixed them from that time ever afterward—for the girl with the yellow hair never showed up in Blairtown again. She went away!

Minerals in the Human Body.

The human body contains, among other constituents, about two pounds of phosphorus, which is essential to the health of the bones and the vigor of the brain. This phosphorus, if extracted and put to another use, would make up about 4,000 packages of friction matches.

Besides phosphorus, the body contains a few ounces of sodium and half an ounce of potassium. The quantity of the latter would be sufficient for many experiments in a class of chemistry.

In addition to sodium and potassium there are a few grains of magnesium, enough to make the "silver rain" for a family's stock of rockets on a Fourth of July evening or to create a brilliant light visible at a considerable distance.—Harper's Weekly.

He knew her, that is, he had a nodding acquaintance with her. It was the girl at the drug store who sold soda water, and he had asked her some hundreds of times for a "vanilla or a chocolate," but it wasn't this vulgar memory that made the little boy listen. It was the girl's voice. Standing back of the yellow-painted rail, above the minister's pulpit, above the floor, the red pews and the panama fans, she sang, and she sang into Dan Blair's soul. To speak more truly, she made him a soul in that moment. She awakened the boy; his collar felt tight, his cheeks grew hot. He felt his new boots, too hard and heavy. She made him want to cry. These were the physical sensations—the material part of the awakening. The rest went on deeply inside of Dan. She broke his heart; then she healed it. She made him want to cry like a girl; then she wiped his tears.

The little boy settled back and grew more comfortable and listened, and what she sang was:

"From Greenland's icy mountains,
From India's coral strands—
Before the hymn reached its end he was a calm boy again, and the hymn took up its pictures and became like an illustrated book of travels, and he wanted to see those pea-green peaks of Greenland, to float upon the icebergs to them, and see the dawn break on the polar seas as the explorers do. . . . He should find the north pole some day! Then he wanted to go to an African jungle, where the tiger, "tiger shining bright," should flash his stripes before his eyes! Dan would gather wreaths of coral from the str—ands and give them to the girl with the yellow hair. When he and his father came out together from the church, Dan chose the street that passed the soda fountain drug store and peeped in. It was dark and cool, and behind the counter the drug clerk mixed the summer drinks; and the drug clerk mixed them from that time ever afterward—for the girl with the yellow hair never showed up in Blairtown again. She went away!

Minerals in the Human Body.

The human body contains, among other constituents, about two pounds of phosphorus, which is essential to the health of the bones and the vigor of the brain. This phosphorus, if extracted and put to another use, would make up about 4,000 packages of friction matches.

Besides phosphorus, the body contains a few ounces of sodium and half an ounce of potassium. The quantity of the latter would be sufficient for many experiments in a class of chemistry.

In addition to sodium and potassium there are a few grains of magnesium, enough to make the "silver rain" for a family's stock of rockets on a Fourth of July evening or to create a brilliant light visible at a considerable distance.—Harper's Weekly.

TOLD NOT TO ATTACK T. R.

Taft Tells Friends They Must Take No Raps at Roosevelt.

DENIES BAD RELATIONS

The President Hasn't Replied to Criticisms of His Policies and Doesn't Intend To.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Word was sent broadcast to supporters of President Taft for renomination that in no circumstances would the president countenance attacks on Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, no matter what the ultimate intention of Colonel Roosevelt in regard to the Republican presidential nomination might be.

It was said that the president had expressed himself as being at a loss to account for reports that relations between himself and Colonel Roosevelt were seriously strained.

He had not taken opportunity to reply directly to any utterances of Colonel Roosevelt that have been interpreted in some quarters as attacks upon the policy of the administration. It was said the president does not wish his friends to go any further than he has.

The Taft campaign for delegates in the president's own state will be made with his trust in his record as its basis. Lawrence K. Langdon, who has been designated as the administration leader in Ohio, had conferences with Senator Burton and the five Republican members of the house from Ohio relative to beginning the campaign for delegates and to offset whatever sentiment has been created against the president by the efforts which Senator LaFollette and his followers have made.

It was agreed that the president's achievements in enforcing the Sherman anti-trust law afforded the most promising issue.

Mr. Langdon will return to Ohio and begin work at once. He will start with a speech at Akron on Jan. 9 and will follow it with another at Columbus on Jan. 12. He will advocate the election of Taft delegates and the endorsement of Taft and his administration by the Ohio state convention.

LaFollette Suddenly Ill.

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 5.—Still suffering from the effects of ptomaine poisoning, Senator LaFollette, of Wisconsin, spoke for half an hour here in a crowded theater. Several hundred persons were unable to gain admission.

LaFollette Has a Bad Fall.

Morris, Ill., Jan. 5.—Senator LaFollette showed himself recovered from his attack of poisoning, but narrowly escaped injury when he arrived here from Joliet. As the car stopped the senator leaped from the step and was running along the platform, when he slipped and fell. He was helped to his feet, a bit dazed by the shock, but declared himself uninjured.

FOR BIG CUT IN STEEL DUTY

Sub-Committee Agrees on Bill Providing Reductions of 30 to 35 Per Cent.

Washington, Jan. 5.—A bill making general reductions of 30 to 35 per cent on all steel and iron duties of the Aldrich tariff law, was agreed to by a house ways and means subcommittee.

The bill would add to the free list of goods and other articles of a value among consumers.

The subcommittee consists of Representatives Dixon, of Indiana; Palmer, of Pennsylvania, and Hull, of Michigan. These men agreed upon the bill, a report for the full Democratic caucus, with the expectation of early introduction of the measure.

KANSAS CITY BANK CLOSES

Night and Day Institution Suspends Payment.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 5.—The All Night and Day bank, of Kansas City, Kan., closed its doors, following a three days' run, during which $35,000 of its $100,000 deposits were drawn out. The capital stock is $100,000.

Terra Haute Bank Closed.

Terra Haute, Ind., Jan. 5.—With the statement that W. H. Taber, president of the American State bank, is short in his accounts $25,000 and that the bank has made loans on worthless security amounting to $20,000 more, the state banking department closed the institution. The bank was organized in 1907, and Taber has been its president since its opening.

H. D. Taylor Resigns.

Reading, Pa., Jan. 5.—It was rumored here that H. D. Taylor, for some years superintendent of motive power and rolling equipment of the Reading railway, has tendered his resignation. Local officials referred all inquiries to Vice President Theodore Voorhees at the Reading Terminal in Philadelphia.

"Baby" Bliss Found Dead.

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 5.—Leonard Bliss, aged forty-five, was found dead in bed here. He weighed 550 pounds and as "Baby" Bliss was exhibited in America and Europe in bicycle races and museums.

Government Prosecutor in Indiana Dynamite Cases.

McNAMARA'S FRIEND BEFORE GRAND JURY

Frank Eckhoff Testifies in Dynamite Probe.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 5.—Frank Eckhoff, of Cincinnati, an intimate friend of J. J. McNamara, appeared before the federal grand jury.

While his revelations have been kept a profound secret, it is known that he was a close friend of John J. McNamara, and that he was in frequent consultation with the iron workers' secretary at his office in Indianapolis.

Eckhoff is admittedly the most important witness that has been before the grand jury, and it was understood by Burns and his men, to whom he gave a detailed story of dynamiting outrages, that he would make a clean breast of his knowledge when called as a witness.

Eckhoff is said to have had knowledge of the methods of operation of the iron workers, and knew out of what cities they were principally operating. Eckhoff is said to have led the detectives to a place in Pennsylvania where dynamite was stored. He is said to have told Cincinnati detectives and the Burns men some of the details of the plans to wreck buildings in and near Cincinnati.

It is expected that the work of preparing the indictments in advance so as to expedite the returning of these when the grand jury investigation closes, will be begun in the near future, although none of this work has been done yet. Because of the number of indictments expected this plan will be followed so there will be little delay in the grand jury finishing up its work.

SAVED BY ALARM CLOCK

Awakened Porter, Who Found Hotel Filled With Gas.

Pittsford, Pa., Jan. 5.—An alarm clock awakened Thomas McFadden, a porter, in time to save the dozen guests and hired help of the McFee hotel from asphyxiation.

Upon awakening McFadden detected the odor of gas. Going from one room to another he found the guests were all affected by the gas. He hurriedly raised all the windows and then summoned help.

Doctors soon arrived and spent much time trying to revive the victims, many of whom were dangerously ill. A gas pipe in the cellar had burst.

BIDS FOR BATTLESHIPS

Offers to Build Dreadnoughts Are Within the Limit.

Washington, Jan. 5.—Bids to build the 27,000-ton battleships Oklahoma and Nevada were opened.

The lowest proposals were from the New York Shipbuilding company, of Camden, N. J., at $5,326,000 for one ship, and the Fore River Shipbuilding company, of Quincy, Mass., at $5,935,000 per ship.

These bids are within the appropriations by congress. It was feared that the new eight-hour law for yards building naval vessels would raise them above the limit.

Noted Trappist Monastery Burned.

St. Norbert, Man., Jan. 5.—The famous Trappist monastery here was destroyed by fire. Sixty monks, who never speak, and who live entirely on vegetables, are homeless as a result. The loss is $100,000.

SAYS WIFE TRIED TO KILL FAMILY

Egypt, Pa., Man Accuses Spouse of Short Time.

POISON IN THE PIES

Woman Is Accused of Mixing Strychnine and Glass With Powdered Sugar Used in Baking.

Allentown, Pa., Jan. 5.—That she poisoned pies with the object of wiping out her husband and his whole family is the charge that has been lodged against Mrs. John Kulp, of Egypt, Lehigh county, by her husband.

Mrs. Kulp was formerly Miss Hannah Seely, of West Catawauqua, and she and her husband, after their marriage three months ago, went to live with his parents in Egypt. His sister, Ida, is also a member of the family.

A few days ago young Mrs. Kulp asked two grape pies. When they were served it was noticed by the other members of the family, according to their statements, that the pies were liberally besprinkled with powdered sugar.

The young husband cut out a big wedge of pie, but he says, the taste was not at all like that mother used to make, but was gritty and bitter. That ended the attempt to eat the grape pies.

Kulp had an analysis made, and then went before Squire Kichline, accusing his wife of attempting to kill them all by mixing ground glass and strychnine with the powdered sugar.

The wife, who is thirty-five years old, was committed to prison by the judge, but her brother and sister came to her rescue and furnished $100 bail for her appearance at a hearing on Saturday afternoon.

The motive, according to the family's statement, is dissension, the assertion being made that they did not get along well and that quarrels were frequent because Kulp's parents and sister objected to the bride.

Mrs. Kulp denies she poisoned the pies and to prove her innocence offered to eat part or all of them. If they contain poison, she asserts, she did not put it there, and if there is glass in the sugar, it was placed there by the Kulp family without her knowledge.

The pies are locked up in a trunk at the Kulp home, to remain until they are to be produced at the hearing as evidence.

Restore Gray Hair To Natural Color
By Sage, A Simple Remedy
For Dandruff, Faded
And Gray Hair.

The old idea of using sage for darkening the hair is again coming in vogue. Our grandmothers used to have dark, glossy hair at the age of seventy-five, while our mothers have white hair before they are fifty. Our grandmothers used to make a "sage tea" and apply it to their hair. The tea made their hair soft and glossy, and gradually restored the natural color.

One objection to using such a preparation was the trouble of making it, especially as it had to be made every two or three days, of account of souring quickly. This objection has been overcome, and by asking almost any first-class druggist for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy the public can get a superior preparation of sage, with the admixture of sulphur, another valuable remedy for hair and scalp troubles. Daily use of this preparation will not only quickly restore the color of the hair, but will also stop the hair from falling out and make it grow.

Get a bottle from your druggist today. Use it and see for yourself how quickly dandruff goes and gray hairs vanish.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. People's Drug Store special agent for Gettysburg, Pa.

Honey Bread.

In Europe where the food value of honey seems to be much better understood than in the United States, enormous quantities are used. Of late years we seem to be waking to a realization of the value of honey as a wholesome and delicious article of food, and also as to its preservative qualities. Cakes and sweet breads made with sugar soon become dry and crumbly, and to get the good of them must be eaten when fresh; but where they are made up with honey they seem to retain their moist freshness indefinitely. In France honey bread a year or eighteen months old is preferred to that just made. They say, "It has ripened." It is the preservative, or rather the unchanging quality of honey that makes it so popular with the best confectioners.—Christian Herald.

COMING
Mr. Paul Gilmore in The
Peer of All Comedy
Drama Successes.

"The Mummy and the Humming Bird" which was originally produced by Sir Chas. Wyndham and played most successfully for years by Mr. Paul Gilmore will appear at the Wizard Theatre Thursday, January 11. The motif of the play is one suggestive of dramatic possibilities, the consequences that flow from the neglect of the wife by the husband who takes love for granted; and forgets that the woman craves the continuing evidence of it, the sympathy and heart communion of the true wedded wife. The theme is worked out with fine dramatic insight and power. The plot with its plot within a plot, is admirably conceived and developed in logical sequence and directness. The action is progressive, the incidents heighten the interest and the acts are worked up to the effective climaxes. The dialogue is exceptionally bright and trenchant and the whole play takes hold of one's sympathy and imagination.

Mr. Paul Gilmore, the eminent actor will lead this most excellent company of players. The play and company are meeting with the greatest success everywhere, on their globe trotting tour.

WHO DISCOVERED TURKEY?

Four hundred and twenty-five years ago the baldheaded boss of the barnyard was not yet strutting before European royalty and sassin' those debilitated dukes and duchesses.

Then some one went and discovered turkey, and the big bay window bird, with crimson cravat and cog wheel conclusion, quick swung into popularity and gave a solar plexus to the fat pig that had from the primordial period been the piece de resistance on King Arthur's round table. Immediately old world wisecracks went to jaw wrangling that turkey sprang from anywhere but America.

They gobbled loud and long and divided into three fowl factions. The first claimed Columbus discovered turkey in 1492, the second that he discovered turkey in 1498, and the third declared Cortes eloped with turkey in 1518.

But here is the last straw that breaks the Columbus turkey's back. The courteous Count de las Navas, librarian to his majesty the king of Spain, has searched the dusty royal archives for us and hands out this turkey truth: Pedro Nino was turkey's discoverer on the voyage made by him in 1499.

He brought some from the Indians at the rate of four glass beads for each fowl.

It is certain that in 1500, on the return of this fortunate expedition to Bacteria, in Galicia, besides the monkeys, parrots and other curiosities collected by Nino in America, turkeys were first seen on European soil.

The turkey was sent from Spain to England in 1524 and first eaten in France, June 27, 1570, at the wedding of Charles IX. and Elizabeth of Austria. Twelve for this feast were shipped.

ed from Boston, and the king's mother-in-law ate so much of the new bird he nearly died of indigestion.

But if turkey didn't originate in Turkey, how about the name?

The bird was first called Pavos de Indias, Indian fowl, as coming from the Indies, which Columbus was supposed to have discovered, and then, on account of its bare head and neck, it was confounded with the guinea, which was then called turkey, and the word in sixteenth century vernacular did not refer to Turkey, but signified foreign.

But, say, when Raleigh carried the potato from America to England and they called it the Irish potato, does that prove the tuber came from fair Erin? Nil.

WHY SUN CHANGES IN SIZE

Varied Opinions Are Due to Fact That There is Nothing With Which to Compare It.

Ask ten people how large the sun looks to them when it is in mid-heaven, and you will get ten different opinions of its size, which range from a silver dollar to a cart wheel. The varied opinions are due to the fact that there is nothing with which to compare it when looked at by itself. Before any accurate estimate of its size can be made, we must have some known object with which to compare it.

Thus, when the sun is on the horizon and appears to be close to houses, trees and hills, it looks large. To some people it seems as large as a house or tree. Moreover, there are more persons who will agree that it appears to be a certain fixed size under this condition than will agree when it is viewed at the zenith. The diversity of opinion in the latter case results from the inability of the eye to "size up" an isolated object.

This has been proved by Prof. E. C. Landis, by projecting a narrow beam of light on a perfectly black, non-reflecting screen so placed that the observer could see nothing but the beam of light, and had no way of judging its distance from the screen. The observations of several persons under these conditions revealed the fact that there was no certainty about the length of the beam, the apparent length being estimated all the way from a few inches to several feet.

This being the case when the sun is in mid-heaven, how can its size be reduced to some uniform standard?

The most logical answer is found by representing it as a circle located at a fixed distance from the eye.

PIANO PLAYER IS PNEUMATIC

In referring to an invention recently patented by William G. MacArthur of New York, the Scientific American says:

This invention relates to an improved piano-player, an accompanying ing illustration of which shows it in a vertical section through a piano with the attachment thereon. An object of the invention is to provide a device which will be inexpensive to manufacture, strong, durable and both quick and positive in its action. A further object is the provision of a piano playing attachment in which the pneumatic portion of operating mechanism is attached directly to the keys, whereby a great saving in space and more positive and sensitive movement is obtained.

WINTER GROWN RHUBARB.

It is Easily Raised in the Cold Season if Proper Care is Given.

No crop is more easily grown under glass than rhubarb. The roots should be lifted and frozen for a few days before being used for forcing.

Temperatures favorable for growing radishes and lettuce suit rhubarb just as well. When forced under low temperatures the stalk grows heavier.

Subdued light induces a more tender stalk and one milder in quality than when grown in the open ground. Garden soil of a light, open texture is suitable for this purpose.—American Cultivator.

It is easy to grow rhubarb during the winter in any house cellar provided with a furnace. Dig large roots and allow them to freeze for a few days. Then place close together on an inch or two of soil in a warm part of the cellar where there is very little and diffused light.

Sift fine soil between the roots and cover with two inches of soil. Water thoroughly.

The leaf stalks grow rapidly, and cuttings may be made repeatedly until the roots are exhausted, and a new supply can then be planted in the same soil.

There are many rhubarb plants on almost every farm the roots of which should be divided and the surplus may be used to good advantage in forcing.
